Good Friday and Easter Saturday in central Belfast

the passion walk

Belfast ♦ easter 2015

“a wonderful
moving experience
from start to finish.”

“it changed the way
I see my city.”

“it made the passion
feel as fresh as 2000
years ago.”*

The Passion Walk is an individual reflective journey through the streets of central Belfast, where the city itself becomes the backdrop for the story of Christ's Passion. Walking with an audio guide and pausing at certain key locations, you will be invited to enter into the events of Jesus' final hours. The first Easter took place in a busy, complex city where most people were preoccupied with their own concerns. The Passion Walk is an invitation to experience the story in a new way, and perhaps to see the city in a new light.

You are invited to begin your journey at Grosvenor House, 5 Glengall Street (behind the Opera House) any time between 10am and 1pm on Friday 3rd April or Saturday 4th April. Make your urban pilgrimage at your own pace, alone or with friends, and complete the journey with refreshments and a space for further reflection at The Dock Café in Titanic Quarter. We ask all walkers to book in advance on our website www.passionwalk.org. There is a charge of £5 (£3 unwaged) to help cover costs.
